Meet Barry Smith, Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine at St. Joseph Regional Medical Center in Lewiston.

Barry is relatively new to the area, having started at SJRMC in October of 2016. He and his significant other, Lisa, reside with their dogs Roman (a boxer) and Princeton (a yellow Lab).

A retired U.S. Navy lieutenant commander, Barry was a recipient of the Meritorious Service Medal for outstanding service from July 2008 to June 2012. Dr. Smith performs a vast array of general surgery procedures at SJRMC. "Improving the patients' quality of life, whether from treating cancer or simply relieving pain and restoring functionality, is the most rewarding part of surgery," said Barry, who enjoys living and working in a small, tight-knit community that embraces family values and treats everyone like a neighbor.

"(SJRMC is an) organization committed not only to the success and well-being of its employees, but to the health and welfare of the community it serves."
