Meet Dan Murillo, pressman for TPC Publishing.

Dan moved to Lewiston three years ago with his longtime girlfriend and their two sons, Cash, 9, and James, 11. After hitting a rough patch in life, Dan was looking to get a fresh start. It didn't matter what he was doing or where, his goal was just to work.

And then he found his calling. After being hired in the TPC Publishing Co. mailroom, Dan began to excel in his position. It only took three months for press hall Manager Jay Brown to take notice. Jay promoted Dan to pressman, something Dan admits he knew nothing about. "Now I really dig it," Dan said. "I love learning new things."

Even though he is only 28, Dan sees this as a career and would love to retire from TPC Publishing Co.

"Since I started here, I have been doing excellent," Dan said. "I feel like I have a career now. That's huge for me! I have all these great people around me who want to build me up and see me succeed."

Working at the employee-owned Tribune and living in the LC Valley allows Dan the opportunity to thrive in a community that pushes him to his full potential.
