LC State: Idaho's Leader in Online Education

The LC State Humanities Division offers a Communication Arts degree online that encompasses all forms of human communication. The degree prepares students to be competent communicators in today's diverse and evolving business, professional, and academic fields. Graduates with a degree in Communication Arts enter a wide variety of occupations, including radio and television broadcasting, public relations, technical editing and writing, sales, government and academic administration, and teaching, to name a few. A number go on to graduate and professional schools.

This degrees prepares you to be an effective and well-rounded communicator and gives an understanding of communication in various contexts, including personal, organizational, political and mass communication.

Our online delivery is perfect for working adults and parents.

"Recent research shows that people skills like problem solving, leadership, and communication are among the most sought after skills in the labor market. The Communication Arts degree prepares students to meet this demand through developing critical thinking and teaching students how to learn and adapt to a variety of situations." - Kyle Ferguson, interim Humanities Division Chair

COMMUNITY LEADERS BY US

Meet Natalie Keim of Coeur d'Alene, a 2020 LC State graduate who earned a bachelor's degree online in Communication Arts. She is now the transition coordinator for Dual Credit/Career & Technical Education at North Idaho College.

"Having the ability to complete my degree online through LC State was very important to me. I live and work full-time in Coeur d'Alene, therefore taking classes in Lewiston was not realistic for me. My advisor was easily accessible if I ever had any questions. I highly recommend LC State's online degree options."
