Meet Chad Miltenberger, Dean of Walla Walla Community College, Clarkston Campus and a nine-year member of the Valley Vision board of directors.

Chad and his wife, Linda, enjoy spending time in the outdoors and catching an occasional baseball game.

He said he has “always liked the concept of ‘team,’” and that Valley Vision’s commitment to economic development in the Lewiston-Clarkston Valley pairs well with WWCC’s focus on knowledge and skills development.

“I am inspired by common goals, hard work, and strategic thinking through collaborative approaches. Valley Vision certainly provides this venue. What I like most about working with Valley Vision is the people and the connection to the business environment. I also appreciate the level of concern for the future of the Valley, which catapults the inspiration to work diligently and be innovative.”

CAMPUS BY US

The Clarkston Campus, Walla Walla Community College strives to meet the challenge of creating a skilled workforce for industry in our local communities.

The Workforce and Business Development Center has created opportunity in a variety of areas such as Structural and Aluminum Welding, Industrial Mechanics, and Agri-Business.

Their Health Information Technology has been very successful in local placement of skilled employees. Accounting Technology, Business Management, and the addition of their applied baccalaureate degrees have added to their training commitment.

The Nursing program continues to excel attracting students nationally as well as locally, preparing our future health care workers.

WINE BY US

Taste the Northwest's best kept wine secret - the Lewis-Clark Valley AVA in the unique canyons of the Clearwater and Snake Rivers. We have gained a lot of attention over these past years for our wine and scenic beauty, landing us on the map as a go-to destination for wine lovers.

The Lewis-Clark Valley is the newest American Viticultural Area in Idaho and Washington. Winemakers are using locally grown wine grape varieties to craft bold, award-winning, premium wine. Visit and taste the difference....after all, we've been doing it since 1872.

Experience summer in our region full of award-winning wine, eclectic dining experiences, outdoor recreation, historic downtowns, culture, and history with our Summer Passport June 1 through August 31, 2021.
