PAPER & PULP BY US

Meet Matt Hosking, warehouse automation lead electrician for Clearwater Paper in Lewiston.

Matt's favorite pursuits include spending time with his family -- wife Taunia, sons Kevin and Ethan, and daughter Olivia Dixon -- fishing, and helping people through his nonprofit, The Hosking Foundation, which helps people in the Lewiston-Clarkston Valley who are fighting cancer, hardships, childhood disease, and many other struggles.

He has been with Clearwater Paper for 13 years, and is in charge of all automation for the warehouse in the Consumer Products Division's Converting department. Among various other duties, he programs, maintains, and manages all 10 of the robots in his department, "including all conveyor and palletizing equipment before and after each robot. I also am in charge of electrical maintenance and programming of our 14 Laser Guided Vehicles (unmanned forklifts) that stage and deliver our product in our warehouse."

"What makes my job most rewarding is when I am tasked with an assignment to make the process run safer, smoother, and faster and I can complete this task, saving the company time and money. I enjoy each challenge that is laid before me, and always want to complete or exceed the challenge."
