Valley Vision creates living-wage jobs for residents of the Lewiston-Clarkston Valley and the greater region, and also supports existing businesses as well as those seeking to relocate to the area.

Since its inception in 1996, Valley Vision has boosted the region's economy in many ways, according to Executive Director Karl Dye, including business retention and expansion, workforce development and business recruitment.

Valley Vision's success stories include helping expand markets for Snake River boat builders, joining forces with Lewis-Clark State College and Walla Walla Community College on Career and Technical Education programs, and recruiting transportation and supply chain extensions for local businesses and industries.

"Valley Vision's name truly represents our mission," Dye said. "We're a public-private partnership representing both sides of the river and focusing on the future quantity and quality of living-wage jobs."
