The TriState Women's Imaging team is the recipient of the most recent "Be The SPARC Award," TriState's employee nomination award. This award is a quarterly recognition that was established to honor employees who are creating a positive environment for staff and patients. It recognizes those who provide compassionate service and establish connections with their peers and patients, while being committed to the highest standard of work ethic.

The women's imaging team was nominated for their personal connection with patients, kindness, and professionalism. "The ladies greet you with a smile and treat you like a friend rather than a number, and yet they are very professional. I have been to many medical appointments over the years and I don't ever remember being treated with kindness the way I have in your imaging department."
