Steiner's
AUDIO VIDEO

Steiner's Audio Video was founded in 1935 by Harley Steiner. We sell affordable to high performance home and car audio and video, as well as other great conveniences, like car remote start and professional grade home automation. We also offer high quality professional installation of products purchased from us.

While the products we sell have changed over the years (our great grandfather installed electric conversions on steam powered washing machines), our commitment to service during and after the sale hasn't. In today's world of confusing options in technology, Google research can leave you more confused and often ill informed. Let us walk you through your available options so you can make the right and informed purchase the first time. Our showroom is packed full of options that you can audition in person. We also provide the support after your purchase that none of our competition can. All of this at a price that is comparable with all of the big box stores and online retailers. Four generations of excellence means buying local doesn't have to cost more, you just get more.
